This webinar will discuss the delivery of mental health services to the Latino population. The focus will be on delivering these services in a culturally appropriate way and better understanding the barriers and solutions to providing this population with quality mental health services.

Carla Maldonado is a Marriage and Family Therapist at Un Pueblito Counseling and specializes in trauma and PTSD, family conflict and domestic violence. Carla has extensive experience working with people from diverse backgrounds, particularly those with Latino heritage.

Objectives
- Increase understanding of cultural dynamics that may affect the utilization of mental health services.
- Enhance the ability to provide quality mental health services to the Latino population.
- Identify cross cultural communication best practices in order to decrease potential misunderstandings.

Participants: Participants should include health care providers, nurses, public health, health educators, social workers, therapists, Community Health Workers and anyone who interacts with individuals from the Latino population.
